Contemplated Changes in the Corporation By-Laws.

The committee recently appointed to revise the Norway village corporation by-laws, at the adjourned meeting next Monday evening will recommend among others, the following changes:

That future meetings of the corporation be warned by the publication of the warrant in a newspaper and the posting of two warrants in conspicuous places in the village.

That the appointment and compensation of the police or night watchmen shall be left with the assessors and that the amount appropriated by the corporation shall not be overdrawn.

The assessors are to have power to appoint special police and determine the price to be paid for services when in their judgment their services are required.

The warning and calling of Corporation meetings to be done by the assessors. The assessors are to receive $2 per day for time actually expended; the treasurer, $20 per year; the clerk, $5, and $1 additional for attending corporation meeting; the collector to receive, the same rate for collecting taxes as is paid by the town; the clerk of the fire police will receive $1.50 for each fire attended.

There is an article suggesting that the corporation have control of the shade and ornamental trees within the village corporation on streets and private lands.

That overhead signs over streets or sidewalks, advertising matters hung from poles over streets, the broadcast distribution of advertising matters, the dumping of offal and refuse matters in the streets or sidewalks, to be prohibited with a reasonable penalty attached to the same, and the purchase of apparatus, to be left with the assessors.

A large part of the by-laws have been shifted and changed to fit the conditions of today and obsolete matters have been dropped from it.

Mr. Sargent was the principal speaker of the day and called attention to important questions regarding roads. The law now is that the selectmen of each town are obliged to put in the warrant an article regarding the appropriation for State road work.

He called attention to the improved time book which should be used for keeping time. It is divided into subdivisions so that the cost of each portion of the work can be easily ascertained.

The Old Folks' concert was given in the auditorium and the church was filled. The concert was exceptionally good and was thoroughly appreciated by the audience and although the program was of good length, many were obliged to respond to an encore. Lean on Your Own Oars.

In the past, people have lived too much on the merits of their parents or ancestors; but the age is getting material, and we must with it come more of exact judgment and real common sense.

Today, a person is not, or should not, be judged by what his parents or other ancestors were but by what he really is and proves himself.

The graves of dead heroes do not support him, or affect his reputation so much as do his own personal efforts.

Neither should the evil and grave mistakes of our predecessors be a drawback and curse to the children and children's children, who desire to do well.

"I am what I am" is more to the point than the false hope so often cherished within the breast of the smooth-tongued hypocrite—"I am what I am not."

But though these things get strangely mixed, somehow they get the final summing up by a just and wise judgment, and though one passes muster for a time, or seems to do so, there is a day when the world will render to all their due, and truth and justice conquer.

We have seen, or read of but one Being who is perfect—only one Creator.

"He is my friend who tells me my faults."

If a person goes to another, as a friend, and kindly points out what faults he sees militating against his own interests, ready to lend a helping hand, and to stand by in time of need, to make him listen, and profit, trying to make his life the broader, and richer and better, for such friendship.

But, the breath of scandal coming from those at one's back, gloating over mistakes and failures, is an outrage.

One can scarcely imagine a man to overlook it. It is this "stab in the back" that kills.

Yet, it occurs, not as much him that receives it, as it does him that gives it. Ah! fatal to himself is the forked tongue of the slanderer, serpent in disguise!

"He is my friend who tells me my faults."

This rule does not apply to gossipers those who tell others your faults, but for him, who out of pure kindness of purpose, as one friend to another, whispers very low to you of your being so unlike any other being, human or inhuman, that they all are banded together to slay you, or perhaps better, to "slight and slur" and leave you entirely in the dark as to why this is so.

The friend and the one who believes in you, and would help you out of your difficulties.

But, on the other hand, we rejoice to know that each one must "lean on his own oars" and that the power of evil doers is but for a day, and will be quelled sooner or later.

That after all, and over all there is one word that shall stand in all its power, and that word is Justice.

Black Leg—a Bacterial Disease of Potatoes

The Maine Agricultural Experiment Station is now mailing Bulletin 174, which discusses a bacterial disease of the stem and tuber of the potato that has only recently been recognized in America. A similar disease known as Blackleg has been known in Europe for some time, and it is thought to have been introduced into this country by means of infected seed tubers. As yet Blackleg has not caused much damage in Maine potato fields but it is thought to be on the increase. The chief danger from this disease lies in the fact that it causes much more serious losses in states farther south where Maine potatoes are largely purchased for seed purposes. If this trade is to be held, growers and shippers of seed potatoes should learn to recognize the disease and as far as possible ship for seed purposes from fields upon which it does not occur.

Anyone can learn to recognize the disease from the description which is given. It is thought that the distribution and spread can be easily controlled, and methods for doing this are described in the Bulletin.

A copy of Bulletin 174 will be sent to any resident of Maine on request. Requests should be addressed to the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, Orono, Maine. In writing please mention this paper.

The Agricultural College.

The College of Agriculture is beginning a new line of extension work looking toward the improvement of orchard conditions in the state. It consists in practical orchard spraying demonstrations. The regular sprays recommended for orchards in this section, will be applied at the proper dates to portions of different orchards in the orchard sections of the state. Field meetings will be held when these sprays are applied and when the fruit is gathered. The cost of spraying, the benefits to be derived from it, and other things connected with the operation can thus be actually seen and studied by the community. The first orchard to be selected for this work is that of E. N. Barrett near Winterport. The first spray—lime sulphur—was applied April 1st.

Union Meeting of Oxford Dairymen and Androscoggin Breeders' Association.

A union meeting of the Oxford County Dairy Testing association and the Androscoggin Valley Jersey Breeders' association was held at East Sumner grange hall recently. The meeting was called to order by E. E. Atkins, president of the Testing association, after which routine business was disposed of.

H. O. Hussey discussed his herd records. He reports that his cows are doing better this year than they did last, and thinks the reasons are found in his better care and management and knowledge of the individual. Committee on program was appointed for next meeting.

C. T. Barney and F. S. Palmer. Meeting will be held Friday May 6, in order that Prof. Comstock of the University of Maine may be present and speak on Domestic Science in its relation to the rural home.

O. L. Varney and E. E. Spofford will discuss their herd records.

Master Marle R. Adams, age 14, gave a very interesting report of what he saw and learned at Farmers' Week, University of Maine. Master Adams said he went to Farmers' Week last year on the invitation of his uncle. This year he went on his own account and paid his own bills because he thought he would learn enough there to more than offset the cost. He says he has found already that a person must be interested in his work in order to make a success of it.

He gave a brief summary of all the lectures which he attended, presenting the pith of each one.

He spoke of the changes in farming which have taken place in the last 50 years, using Pres. Fellows' illustration that the new agriculture is as different from the old as a two-wheeled oxcart is from the automobile.

After he had briefly discussed the lectures of the week he described the farm equipment of the College of Agriculture, also mentioning some phases of student life there at the University.

His talk was given the closest attention and a little later in the day a vote of thanks was extended him for his efforts. This was Master Adams' first attempt at a public speech which he had not committed. He spoke from the notes which he took during the week.

Investigation of Dairy Products in Oxford County.

C. W. Barber representing the State Department of Agriculture as Assistant Dairy Inspector in charge of the investigation of Dairy Products, spent several days recently in the towns of Bethel, Paris and Norway, securing samples of milk from the milk dealers of those towns for analytical purposes. This work is being carried out in accordance with the law passed in 1908 requiring that the commissioner of agriculture shall either in person or by duly authorized agent or assistant diligently inquire into and investigate the production, manufacture, transportation, storage and sale of milk, cream, butter and all other dairy products, substitutes therefor or imitations thereof.

The results of analysis of all samples of dairy products are published quarterly in a bulletin issued by the State Department of Agriculture. The publishing of such analysis it is believed will have a strong influence on dairymen and dealers in that they will strive to produce and sell milk of guaranteed cleanliness and quality. Also the consumer can readily determine the quality of the milk sold in his town just as the farmer can ascertain the contents and relative value of fertilizers now sold on the market. He buys the fertilizer to suit his requirements and of course patronizes that concern which manufactures the most reliable goods.

The public is accustomed to judge milk by its percentage of fat but it should be borne in mind that the value of milk as a food depends to a greater extent on the proportion of solids not fat, that is, proteins, milk sugar and ash.

The person in charge of this investigation always makes himself known to the dealer from whom he purchases a sample so as to carry on the work in an open, frank and business like manner.

In reference to who shall be considered a milk dealer the law reads that: "Any person, firm, corporation, association or society who shall sell or deliver milk or cream to any person from a wagon or other conveyance, depot or store, or who shall sell or deliver milk to a hotel, restaurant, boardinghouse or any public place, shall be considered a milk dealer within the meaning of this act and shall on or before the first day of April in each year register with the commissioner of agriculture, furnishing such information as may be required."

Any person, firm, corporation, association or society who shall sell or deliver milk or cream to any person from a wagon or other conveyance, depot or store, or who shall sell or deliver milk to a hotel, restaurant, boardinghouse or any public place, shall be considered a milk dealer within the meaning of this act and shall on or before the first day of April in each year register with the commissioner of agriculture, furnishing such information as may be required."

There is no charge for registration and this law requiring dealers to register must be strictly conformed with. All dealers selling from wagons are expected to post on said wagons the number of the certificate of registration. Metal numbers selling for a few cents each may be purchased in most towns and can be fastened directly on the wagons or on a metal sheet which can be transferred from one wagon to another, or to a pump. This latter method offers an efficient and economical way of posting the registration number on wagons.

Stomachs Repaired.

Relieves Distress in Five Minutes—Guaranteed to Cure Indigestion, or Money Back.

Let Mrs. Griffith tell you about Mi-on-a, the greatest prescription for stomach troubles ever written:

"For years I have doctored for acute gastritis, but only received slight benefit, and had to be careful what I ate. But, thanks to Mi-on-a stomach tablets, I can now eat anything. Last Christmas, after partaking of a hearty turkey dinner, I was seized with an attack of acute indigestion, and the doctor worked over me for hours before I got relief. He paid me eight visits before I could say I was well enough to sit up. But since then I have taken Mi-on-a tablets, and I have not been troubled since. Before using Mi-on-a I had attacks about every month."—Mrs. Ida Griffith, 3213 O St., Washington, D. C., July 5, 1909.

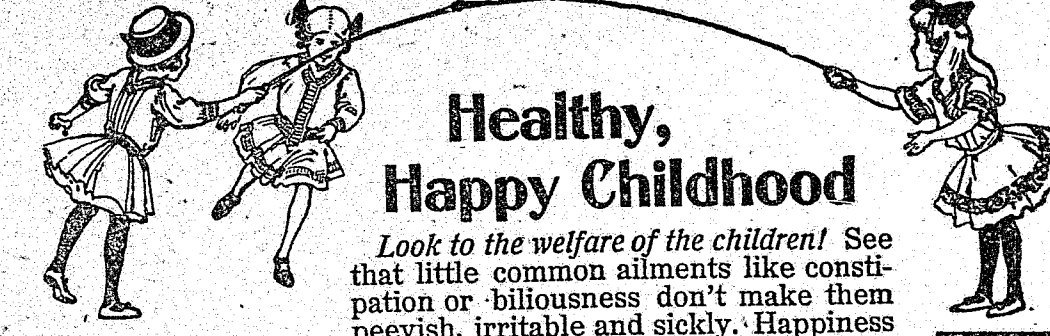

Mi-on-a stomach tablets are sold by druggists everywhere and at Noyes Drug Store for 50 cents a large box. They are guaranteed to cure indigestion, sour stomach, belching gas, dizziness, biliousness, heaviness, or any stomach ailment.

ANIMAL FERTILIZERS

Active all the time.

Too Much Emphasis

cannot be laid upon the fact that the fertilizer nearest to nature, or nature's manure, will prove the most reliable and profitable.

That is why Swift's Fertilizers are so much in demand—so satisfactory. They are crop producers as well as soil builders. They leave the soil in excellent condition for later use after first crops have been removed.

For this reason they are active all the time. Be sure you use them.

Swift—Superior—Sure

"It gives me great pleasure to state that I raised one of the finest crops of corn on Swift's Fertilizer this season ever produced on World's End Farm. The yield was more than 55 bushels shelled corn per acre."

"Have used these fertilizers to my entire satisfaction the past ten years, and will use them extensively this coming season."

(Signed) C. E. Goodhue, Supt., World's End Farm, Hingham, Mass.

"I have conducted an experiment with 30 varieties of potatoes to ascertain the best yielder. Swift's Superior Fertilizer has given glorious results in spite of the driest season known in the century. Yield 400 bushels per acre of handsome salable potatoes. After many years' trial with different kinds, your fertilizer gives me the best results, and it conserves moisture even in periods of drought."

(Signed) Rev. J. E. Lawrence, Raynham, Mass.

One of the vital demands upon you is to enrich the soil and maintain its fertility. To do this economically and successfully simply insist upon using Swift's Animal Fertilizers. They cost no more than others, and are Swift's, superior, sure. See local agent or write us. Free Pocket Memo Booklet containing valuable crop information on application.

Farming for Women.

Farming as an occupation for women is quite strongly favored by State Master Gardener of the Massachusetts grange. In a recent conversation he expressed the view that a great many women who are working hard for small pay in the cities would be better off to engage in small farming and poultry raising. They are already taking advantage of such opportunities to some extent. Mr. Gardner mentioned a woman poultry raiser of Massachusetts who started five years ago with 12 hens, and now carries on a business of $12,000 a year.

There were others in Maine and Connecticut who had made a good success in the poultry business, and many had also done well in raising vegetables and flowers under glass. These two lines seem to him especially adapted for women, as the labor was not too severe and the work seemed to be congenial. Many of the young women struggling for a mere living in the city, he thought, would be better off to go to the country and take up some such outdoor pursuit. —Bangor Weekly.

The Beautiful Star.

The beautiful talked of comet shone brightly in Saturday morning's azure sky. It was 3.38 o'clock when I beheld the glow of the fast rising star. It took but a few seconds for it to rise into full view. As I stood looking in wonder and surprise at its beauty, my mind very suddenly was attracted to the other brightly shining stars, and lo and behold the brightest of them all was a mere speck of brightness compared with this new fast growing star.

To me I thought of the wise men who in the Bible history followed the star in the East, and I felt that this star could never have been more beautiful, and it surely could not have moved with a more perfect rhythm. For those wise men followed that star in the East until it found the Christ in the manger.

What the new bright star foretells no one is able to even dare to describe its true meaning. Halley's star of the eastern horizon seems to be a most conspicuous orb. I feel sure there is some lesson to learn in regard to its meaning. "Thinking in a spiritual mind" it foretells of a brighter future, though none can even dream of its meaning.

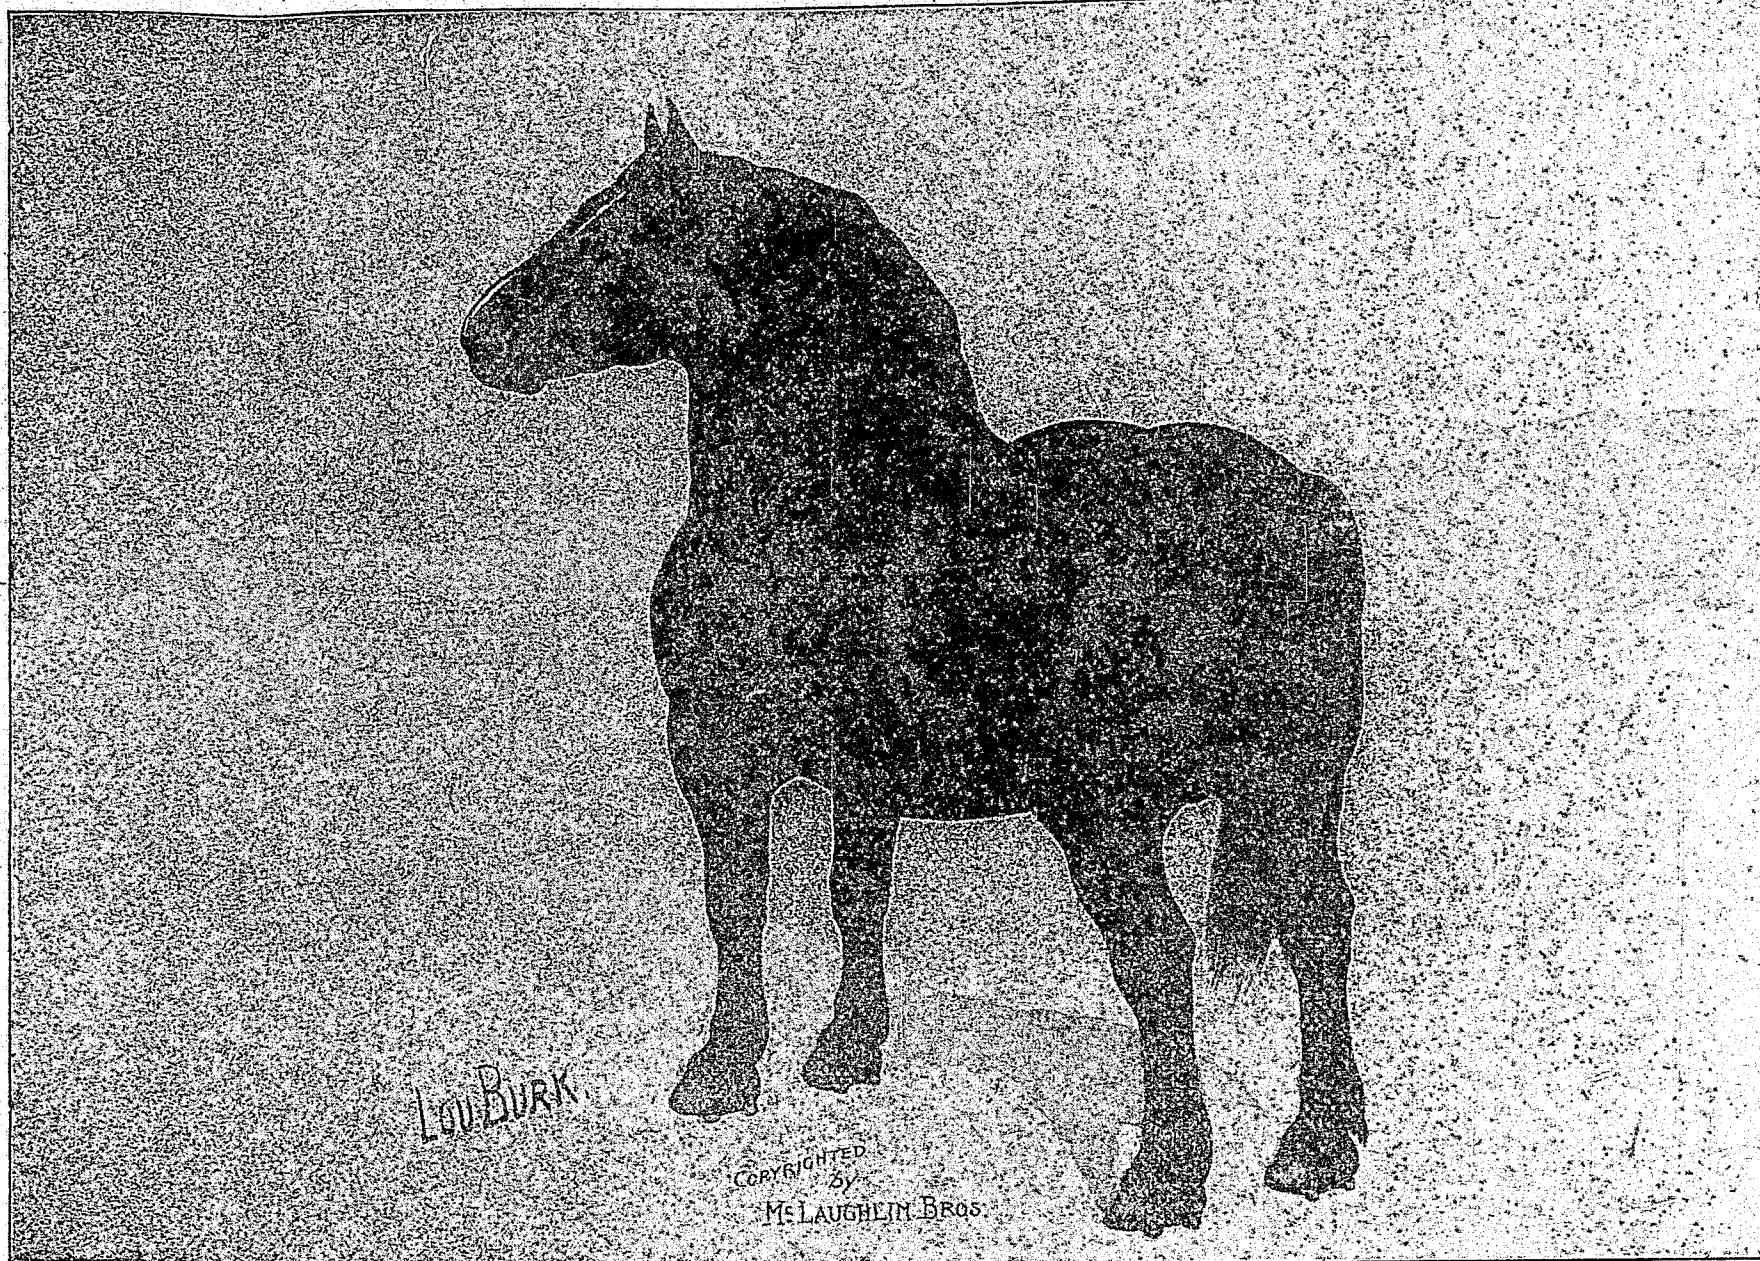

Its brightness is far greater than any of the heavenly stars ever seen in this day and present generation. It will be a pleasure for me from now on till the 18th of May to watch in the morning twilight its wondrous beauty. Not to have seen it I should consider a misfortune. A little later on large parties ought to gather on our beautiful parks and in the wonderful strange star study its glorious heavenly brightness. The star will be a wonderful story to relate to those who are not yet in this life with us.

History is ever repeating itself and surely there is no account of any brighter star than I viewed with amazement on Saturday morning at 3.38 a. m. in the eastern morning's twilight.

If we would teach a child to like that which is good reading, we must establish the liking in his early years. It is not enough that we shall tell him in later days that certain books are good and bid him read them. When he is grown up he will choose that which he likes. The nursery tales should be those which have fed the children of many an age and clime. The song, the hymn, the poem should be those that are worth reading and reciting. Let us make the beautiful story and myth and hymn a part of the child's early environment. More than this, let us remember that in teaching the children to read good books we are re-educating them against the ill of life. Accompanied by noble thoughts they shall go to their dreary and sad toil with a brave spirit, and make melody in their hearts even when their hands are rough with toil, they shall dwell with the great and good and then moments of leisure shall be rich because of these good times of their youth.

GREENWOOD.

The Cat, the Cow, the Man.

Aside from a certain element of danger that entered into the affair, happily with no serious consequences, our fellow townsman, Sylvester Cole, had a decidedly ludicrous adventure the other evening.

It has been the habit of a neighbor's cat to get around at milking time. She has always taken a lively interest in the operation, probably more from selfish motives than with any idea of increasing her store of knowledge, on scientific or other subjects.

On this particular occasion everything was apparently as serene as could be with such no light of any untoward event in the evening air. The cow was contentedly chewing her cud and if any thoughts crossed her docile mind they probably pertained to green pastures and running streams. The cat purred away happily while Mr. Cole, milking, sang in blithely ignorant of approaching disaster. "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Then Pussy, as is her nature, made an attempt to sharpen her toe nails. That is perfectly proper but Pussy's mistake was in selecting the cow's leg for a griststone.

Then, things happened. With a gasp of amazement the cow swallowed her cud, the cat forgot to purr and "Nearer, My God to Thee," was never finished, on that occasion. Talk about transformations! On direct testimony Mr. Cole deposed that he thought lightning had struck his barn in 17 different places and an earthquake was shaking the foundations of the building. Did the cow kick? Well, she did, and then some. About the second kick she pushed her foot through the coat pocket of Mr. Cole and did not get it out until the garment was torn in ribbons, and for several moments he thought the same result would be attained in his case. Happily he was not injured. The milk was still in the barn but not exactly fit to use as it had washed up a considerable portion of the floor. The cat, innocent cause of all the trouble, travelled so fast through the straw that all one could see was a flick of darkness against the sky. She waits no more of an evening for her dish of milk and has a scared appearance quite pitiful to behold even to this day.

The young people of this vicinity are having great fun these April nights, chasing the elusive sucker up and down the brooks. They are unusually plentiful this spring and are not bad eating in the absence of other food.

F. J. Cole has a valuable horse that, a few weeks ago as reported at the time, was seriously injured by kicking against a large spike nail. Ill fortune seems to be following him yet, as, witness the fact, that early Tuesday morning his mate kicked him in the head, inflicting a cut at least 12 inches long and an inch deep. Fifteen stitches were necessary to close the wound and it will be some time, with the best of care, before he will be fit for work.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Lewiston and Overhead Signs.

This is what the Journal says regarding these signs:

"A general crusade in favor of the removal of these signs exchanging the walls has been urged from time to time. If this were done by all the merchants along Lisbon and Main streets the general business-like look of Lewiston would be greatly improved. Lisbon street, in particular, would look wider and less provincial. The overhead signs are permitted in but few cities in the country. They are dangerous and unsightly. Take a look down Lisbon street, see how they hang, at every angle, one obscuring the other until only here and there one of them—an electric sign for instance—is visible. Few of them amount to anything as an indication of the place of business. The purpose of the dealer would be far better served, his store front dress better and the business of the city improved by their removal."

This is all true. The signs are unsightly and should come down. They give a bad impression of a city. Come to Norway and see how much better and wider the streets and sidewalks look without the overhead signs.

Maine Woods: We heard a young man stopping in the country this spring, say, "I thought we had to pay a big price for maple syrup, but now I know how much work it is to make it. I know that the farmer earns all he gets for it."

If we could not change places one with another now and then, we should come to have quite a different estimate of many things and approximate much nearer to their true value. Much is learned by observation; more by experience.

It is estimated that the sweet corn packers of Maine will this year distribute over $1,000,000 to farmers and operatives, a larger sum than ever before. The price of corn delivered at the canneries being fixed in advance, the farmers proceed with confidence to raise their crops, and many of the towns and villages have installed electricity during the past few years and that condition makes it possible to continue work in the shops instead of shutting down at dusk as has been the case in past years. In Maine this season there will be planted from 12,000 to 14,000 acres of sweet corn, and the total output of the factories drawing upon that acreage as a base of supply will exceed 24,000,000 cans. The principal counties to be benefited by the million or more dollars that will be received this year for carrying on the industry are Kennebec, Somerset, Androscoggin, Oxford, Waldo and York. (Camden Herald.)

The postoffice department have requested the patrons of the rural delivery to print the boxes and to post to which they are attached, white. It is also desired that patrons be induced to imprint their names and box numbers on the boxes, in black block letters, about two inches high.

Maine Farmers. The opposition of farmers in Maine to the repeal or modification of the oleomargarine law, by which uncolored is taxed two cents a pound and colored ten cents a pound, has become quite pronounced of late as shown in numerous letters to the senators and representatives of the delegation. This has followed hearings before the House committee on agriculture on a bill to reduce the tax on colored oleomargarine to two cents a pound, the same as on uncolored, and to require that the product be put up in packages weighing 1, 2, 3, 5 and 10 pounds.

Hope on New England Farms.

The problem that every man is trying to solve today is: How can I improve my condition, secure a home of my own, or regain my lost health, or (as in my own case) the combination of all these? To the city wage-earner, there is little hope of a solution of the problem in his present position.

I traveled over the West in search of health and fortune. "I wore out the climate in Colorado," the physician said; and, by the same advice, I came East.

I lived one year in New York city, and that was the veritable "last straw," for constant turmoil completed the shattering of my nerves.

I saw an advertisement of a New England farm and, realizing that I should be a "long time dead," I decided to investigate it. Always a lover of nature, I was first charmed with the beautiful scenery and pure, bracing air, and then entranced with the clear, sparkling water and beautiful, shady drives.

The so-called "abandoned farm" seemed to offer me the long-sought haven of rest, and I bought it.

My farming experience was very limited and my physical condition was such that I could not undertake hard manual labor. I concluded to try raising poultry and pet stock, and, by constant advertising and always trying to satisfy each customer, my business has grown splendidly.

In the past two years I have made over 400 shipments by express, besides large amounts sold at the farm.

From the first I began to gain strength, courage and confidence. I have tried to learn by experience, and, while I have made mistakes, I have also satisfied myself that New England farms offer a rare possibility. I have raised as fine fruit, vegetables and various crops as I ever could raise in the noted West.

A great advantage we have here is the ready markets for anything we produce at good prices, with no fear of overproduction. I am growing alfalfa successfully, and if the New England farmers will only prepare their ground properly, they can raise this great forage crop here and reduce their grain bill one half. There are farms here that can be bought at bargain prices, mostly to settle estates.

While there is nothing so easily given as advice, you are welcome to mine and can avoid my mistakes and improve on my successes.

In all my travels I have never met as honest, kind, helpful people as here in New England. I am now healthy, happy and hopeful, and hence I say to all: Buy a farm in New England.

Meaning of "Family."
The word "family," for the purposes of the census has a different meaning than that ordinarily used. The census meaning is "a group of persons living together in the same dwelling place." This group of persons may or may not be related by ties of kinship, but if they form one household they are considered as a family. A servant who sleeps in the house or on the premises is included as a member of the family for which he or she works. A boarder or lodger is included with the members of the family with which he lodges, but a person who boards in one place and rooms or lodges in another is included as a member of the family with which he rooms or lodges.

All the occupants and employees of a hotel, boarding house or lodging house, if that is their usual place of abode, make up for census purposes a single family. So also the officers and inmates of an institution who live in the institution-building. Again, a census family may consist of one person. For instance a clerk in a store who regularly sleeps there is turned in as a family and the store is his dwelling place.

Hugh Chisholm of New York met the business and professional men of Norway recently and talked over a scheme for organizing an association similar to a Y. M. C. A. except that no class or religious distinction is to be made. Mr. Chisholm plans to finance the association to repay him so that it is thought that at the end of 20 years that the association will own all of the property. Mr. Chisholm's plans were approved of and it was decided to accept them. He showed plans of a new two-story building which will be situated on Exchange street across from the hotel. It will be three stories high, contain two stores for rental, a dining hall, lecture room, gymnasium and other association rooms. Eliza Pratt, president of the Board of Trade, presided. Among the speakers were Hon. Waldo Pettengill and nearly all of the clergy, both Catholic and Protestant, all of whom favored the idea.

Health and Beauty.
Don't overburden yourself with clothes. They are debilitating. The more clothes you pile on the more you will need. You may find some people shivering under two heavy suits of woolen underwear, while others are comfortable in one light linen undershirt.

Make the rule to go out doors every day when the air is pure, take some deep breaths and exercises. You will find that it will keep you warm for quite a time, and it's a healthy warmth.

To straighten round shoulders try the following exercises: Stand about eighteen inches from a door, press the palms of the hands against it and slowly push the body forward until the breast touches the door. This is also good for weak shoulders.

A woman who teaches discovered that in the course of her work she had acquired a healthy crop of frowning wrinkles just above her nose. The effect was unpleasant, as the unconscious frown seemed directed upon her pupils as well as adding apparent years to her age. She discovered that she could use the white paper napkins for the purpose of holding the wrinkles out. A whole roll of this tape costs but 10 cents and from one roll an unlimited number of patches can be made. Those who find it impossible to cure these frowning wrinkles by taking thought will find the patches put on the retiring extremely helpful. A little water removes the patch in an instant.

The Old-Fashioned Woman.
"What caused your sudden blowing in?" asked a veteran in Shade Land of a woman who arrived yesterday.

The woman gave a sigh that blew over a tombstone as she replied: "I am an old-fashioned woman and I did my work in a kitchen with a six-hole range, a big sink, three long tables, two pantries and a dishpan large enough to wash a turkey in. Two days ago I went to visit my daughter in a big city and found her cooking for her family in a chafing dish, keeping her dishes in a washbowl and leaving them stored in the lower part of the washstand. When I saw her get the bread out of a big bowl on the piano, called a jardiniere, and reach for the butter out of the window, I felt a cold chill come over me, and when she made soup by opening a tin can and pouring out a meat to which she added water from the wash pitcher, I knew no more."

Then the old-fashioned woman gave such a sniff of disgust it blew all the Shades over into the next county.

Self-Improvement as an Asset.
The very reputation of having an ambition to amount to something in the world, of having a grand life-slim, is worth everything. The moment your associates find that you are in earnest; that you mean business; that they can not shake you from your determination to get on in the world, or rob you of your time or persuade you to waste it in frivolous things, you will not only be an inspiring example to them, but the very people who are throwing away their time will also admire your stand, respect it and you will thus be able to protect yourself from a thousand annoyances and time-wasters and experiences which would only hinder you.

In other words, there is everything in deciding yourself to be a man of stand and thereby announcing to the world that you do not propose to be a failure or an ignoramus, that you are going to take no chances on your future; that you are going to prepare yourself for something out of the ordinary, away beyond mediocrity, something large and grand. The moment you do this you stand out in strong contrast from the great mass of people who are throwing away their opportunities and have not grit and stamina to do anything worth while, or to make any great effort to be somebody in this world.—[Success.]

Stay On The Farm.

One of the great unsolved problems of Maine agriculture is the question of farm labor. The young men have a tendency to gravitate toward the cities where they can secure situations at so much per diem. In the vast majority of cases this turns out to be all wrong but the few who succeed are the only ones whose stories reach back to the farm and describe. While any thinking man would readily admit the wisdom of remaining on the farm the great difficulty has been to make people believe it and hence the exodus from the country to the congested centres still goes on. Already steps are being taken by the national and State authorities to correct this state of affairs. At the state school of agriculture in New York the matter has been taken up and it is hoped that desirable immigrants can be induced to go into the country and become farm hands. This would seem to be one of the most promising solutions of the whole problem. It would also seem to be a field in which the grange might successfully work. If the National grange would secure desirable immigrants and assign them to the different states according to the pressing needs it would indeed be a valuable work. The rest could be done by the state and subordinate. For example, if Maine received a thousand immigrants they would at once be taken in charge by the State grange and apportioned out to the different towns where the subordinates would place them directly on the farms where such help was required. Of course this is only a suggestion but it is the line of co-operation advocated by the order and a problem that the grange is now trying to solve. In the meantime the Journal would again urge our young men to remain on the farm. Agriculture in Maine is just coming to its own and the next few years will see it develop as never before. The boys and girls who remain on the old farm are going to be the independent men and women of the future.—[Journal.]

The Weight of the Earth.

The earth weighs 13,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 pounds. In a strict sense of the word, the earth has no weight at all, because the weight is really the pull of the earth itself on any other body. And as the earth is thought to be pulling on all parts of itself equally in all directions the net result is, of course, no pull at all. But if a pair of scales be fixed at some point on the earth's surface, and if the earth could be brought up bit by bit, cubic foot by cubic foot, weighed and then returned to its place it could be weighed. And the result would be as given. However, when we talk of the weight of the earth we really mean its mass. The possibility of finding the mass of the earth is due to Newton. For he taught that bodies pulled each other with forces depending solely upon their mass and their distance apart. He showed the body forward until the breast touches the door. This is also good for weak shoulders.

A succession of experiments resulted in the density of the earth being determined at 4.7. Then came the investigations of Michelson and Cavendish, and finally those of Prof. Boys, who found that the earth had 5.521 times the density of water. The weight of a cubic foot of water is about 62 1/2 pounds. And the average weight of a cubic foot of earth is about 350 pounds, or about 5 1/2 times as much as the cubic foot of water. But this is quite imaginary, for specimens of the earth can be obtained only by mere scratches upon its surface. It has been shown by the pendulum that the earth's pull varies at different points on its surface. By the timing of the same pendulum at different parts of the surface it can be found out how the weight varies from point to point.—[Chicago Tribune.]

Fighting the Gipsy Moths.

Bitter war will be waged in Massachusetts this year between the gipsy moth and the Japanese parasite known as the shedius. This is the only hope Massachusetts has of ridding itself of this moth, for it is now so firmly established in the orchards and forests, and along the highways that man alone can never drive them out.

The Japanese enemy of the gipsy moth has been planted in one hundred small colonies throughout the infested section and a little later more colonies will be introduced. If the Company's mills for protecting the grain and flour in grinding. Ask your dealer and insist on having—

Hair Health.

Advantage of this Offer.
If you have scalp or hair trouble, take advantage of this offer.

We could not afford to so strongly endorse Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and continue to sell it as we do, if we were not certain that it would do all we claim it will. Should our enthusiasm carry us away, and Rexall "93" Hair Tonic not give entire satisfaction to the users, they would lose faith in us and our statements, and in consequence our business prestige would suffer.

Therefore, when we assure you that if your hair is beginning to unnaturally fall out or if you have any scalp trouble, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will promptly eradicate dandruff, stimulate hair growth and prevent premature baldness, you may rest assured that we know what we are talking about.

Out of one hundred test cases Rexall "93" Hair Tonic gave entire satisfaction in ninety-three cases. It has been proved that it will grow hair even on bald heads when, of course, the baldness had not existed for so long a time that the follicles, which are the roots of the hair, had not become absolutely lifeless.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is vastly different from other similar preparations. We believe that it will do more than any other human agency toward restoring hair growth and hair health. It is not greasy and will not gum the scalp or hair or cause permanent stain. It is as pleasant to use as pure cold water.

Our faith in Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is so strong that we ask you to try it on our positive guarantee that your money will be cheerfully refunded without question or quibble if it does not do as we claim. Certainly we can offer no stronger argument. It comes in two sizes, price 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain it only at our stores.—The Rexall Store, F. P. Stone, Main street, Norway.

Nature makes the cures after all.

Now and then she gets into a tight place and needs helping out.

Things get started in the wrong direction.

Something is needed to check disease and start the system in the right direction toward health.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with hypophosphites can do just this.

It strengthens the nerves, feeds famished tissues, and makes rich blood.
